Drappier is considered one of the finest boutique Champagne producers in the world; this is because their wine cellars are among the oldest and most extensive in Europe.

Today, Drappier owns fifty-five hectares of vineyard around the town of Urville, with another fifty hectares under contract. Although Pinot Noir accounts for the majority of wine produced, the style is not heavy. There is a vivacity and lightness of touch here that demonstrates great skill, since these champagnes have plenty of concentration and substance.

BABYLONS PEAK

Babylon's Peak is both a stalwart and a relative newcomer within the resurgent Swartland winemaking scene. Stephan Basson's great grandfather established the farm in 1919, and wine was made in the old cellar here until 1948. Since then Stephane has completely renovated and modernised the facility. The vineyards some of the highest in the region at up to 700 meters, lie on the slopes of the Paardeberg Mountain, and have proven especially suitable for Chenin Blanc and Rhone varieties.

VIGNAMATO, MARCHE

Wine production has been in the Ceci family since the 1940's, when Umberto Ceci bought Verdicchio vineyards in San Paolo di Jesi. In the 1950s, Umberto's son Amato and his wife increased production by acquiring new land, and began bottling their own wines. In 1992 Amato's son Maurizio and his wife Serenella invested in a modern winery. The investment has allowed them to capture perfectly all the fresh, vibrant character of their costal grapes.

VINCENT GIRARDIN
MEURSAULT-FRANCE

VINCENT GIRARDIN

The Girardin family was based in Santenay, in the southern Cote de Beaune, for three centuries until Vincent made a bid for freedom. Inheriting two hectares of vines from his parents, he has spent the last thirty years building up the domaine to the current twenty hectares, and supplementing the range with purchases from other carefully selected sites. Since 2009, Girardin's own vineyards have been farmed along biodynamic lines, and the winemaking throughout aims for clarity of expression while allowing the wines to be enjoyed in their youth.

JEAN-MARC BROCARD

The domaine of Jean-Marc Brocard began as just one hectare, a gift from his father-in-law when he married into a winegrowing family. He has since expanded to 200 hectares, of which sixty are organic and a further forty biodynamic, and is widely recognised as one of Chablis's leading producers. The approach is one of minimal intervention in both vineyard and winery: cultivation is practically organic throughout, with ploughing in place of herbicides, predators instead of pesticides, manure rather than fertilizer.

BODEGA NORTON

In 1885, the Buenos Aires to Mendoza railway opened, cementing the significance of this emerging wine growing region high in the Andes foothills. One visitor to Mendoza, an English engineer called Edmund Norton, was so struck by the beauty and potential he saw there that he established a winery bearing his name, and in 1895 planted the first vines in Mendoza's Lujan de Cuyo district. Almost a century later, Gernot Langes-Swarzovski was similarly struck by Mendoza and its vineyards; in 1989, he acquired Bodega Norton and set about transforming it into the world-renowned winery it is today. Both men, rightly recognised the special nature of the area. At 900 – 1,100 meters, the altitude moderates the temperature while exposing the vines to more ultraviolet light.

SAINTSBURY

One of the USA's best respected producers of Chardonnay and Pinot Noir. Saintsbury has been championing an elegant, more 'European' style for over twenty-five years. Dick Ward and David Graves met at oenology classes at UC Davis in 1977, and founded Saintsbury in 1981, two years before the Caneros appellation was officially recognised. Since then they have remained at the forefront of experimentation in both vineyard and cellar, with detailed investigation into clones, irrigation and filtration helping them continually refine the style of their wines and stay at the top of the quality tree.
